No Reason For It.

When Norway Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Norway citizen says:

George H. Buswell, Marston St., Norway, Me., says: "About six months ago my kidneys became disordered and I began to suffer from dull pains across the small of my back. A languid feeling came over me, and I was unable to rest well. I also noticed that the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage although the flow was scanty. My body often bloated and I was also troubled by dull headaches. I read that Doan's Kidney Pills had rid other persons of similar troubles and decided to try them. I procured a box from Stone's Drug Store. They cured me and I am free from kidney complaint at the present time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Roster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

A Good Crop.
W. S. Austin of South Paris has raised on his farm just a little less than 18 acres of head crops. These included about three-fourths of an acre of sweet corn, two acres of peas, five acres potatoes and ten acres of beans.

He realized $80 from the three-fourths acre of sweet corn. He raised 1200 bushels of potatoes, which are stored in his cellar. The beans will turn out from 250 to 300 bushels.

No hard hoeing was done on the crops and up to harvesting time Mr. Austin with one pair of horses did practically all the work, hiring in all only three or four days' work of a man and team.

Folks who are always bothered to obtain small bills enough to make change will be interested to learn that the treasury department has just recalled an issue of $20 bills and is to replace them with $1 bills to meet the demand for bills of smaller denominations. It is stated that the demand for small bills was twenty-eight millions in excess of the supply.

The Farmhouse on the Hill.

William Curtis Stiles.

Since boyhood days, that passed and come no more, at evening when all the world is still, I fancy oft, as in days of yore, I dream of the farmhouse on the hill.

Where dewy orchards bloom, and wild flowers grow, And fragrant breezes o'er the meadows blow.

Sometimes again, in day dreams dim of old, I see myself, the paragon boy or girl, With many forms and faces once so dear, Who lived—and passed—like some swift tale But memories now, who vanquished one by one.

As day fades out at setting of the sun, Ah! well do I recall each hill and dale, The broad fields redden with new mown hay, The laughing brook, meandering through the vale.

The pasture ledges with their mosses gray; The ancient oak, where squirrels frisked and played; Whose gnarled roots concealed the nests they made.

And cawing crows perched in the branches bare, Keeping watch while others pilage, morn by morn, That ragged scarecrows never would really scare.

The white birds that thrive among the springing corn; White gray mistle hide the summits of the hills, And morning birds song all the forest fills.

I see again the daisies in the sun, And hear the wild thrush calling to his mate, And catch the music when the day is done, While cattle gather at the pasture gate.

Of tinkling bells and bleat of frisking sheep, What e'er the world the evening shadows sweep.

Then Tom and I would drive the browsing kine, And down the lane with many a chase and shout, That from her perch upon the needed pine, Would drive the whirling partridge swiftly out.

Or start the woodcock from his alder screen, Or nesting quail from out the tassocks green.

Well I remember father's old gray mare— Old Fanny—so stubborn and so slow, We watered at the brook, and fed with care, And "hickie" galloped to make the creature go.

As in the twilight of a summer day, We rode her bareback down the dusty way.

How cold and sweet the spring behind the wall, That rushed from out the crevice of the stone, Still can I hear the silvery streamlet fall, An endless tinkling of melody.

Sweet echoes of a golden day gone by, That linger still within my memory. The old farmhouse has crumbled to the ground, The oak long since has met its stormy fate, No more is heard the sweet and tinkling sound.

Of evening cow bells at the pasture gate. The gate itself is gone, the paths o'er-grown, As if a human foot they ne'er had known, The partridge perches in the old barn frame, The orchard now is but a wilderness.

The stable and the fences fell in storm and stress; The ways are overgrown with briars and weeds, And where the chickens lived the wild birds feed.

Shall I return on some yet future day, To see again the melancholy place? Perchance remain the old barn frame, and lay A new foundation, and new features trace?

Days go by, and I am growing old, And soon my soul in earth will all be told.

Yet while I think the crowded city street, The old-time memories of the hill are sweet, And once again I hear the meadow sweet, And once again I hear the wild bird's song, While some one more, my fancy fond to fill, Fair visions of that farmhouse on the hill.

Fly Family Grows Fast.

Increases in Winter Months—No Country Immune.

In an article prepared by Dr. Henry G. Beyer, medical examiner of the United States Navy, he said that in 1900 L. O. Howard, entomologist of the department of agriculture, made a collection of flies from dining rooms. When it came to "swarming flies," the entomologist seems to have made a record, for he collected 23,087 from sugar bowls, butter plates and cream pitchers, and from other points in dining rooms, and found that of this number 22,308 were the common "musca domestica," or house fly. The few remaining flies were scattered among other species less commonly understood by the householder.

"That flies are perfectly capable of breeding in the winter months is shown by Dr. Beyer, who cites experiments by a scientist. This scientist said that in a house where an average temperature of 70 degrees was maintained flies had succeeded in preventing the sort of race suicide that would be fatal to their breed. The article says:

"The duration of the various stages at an average temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit he gives as follows: The eggs hatch in twenty-four hours, the pupal stage, on an average, ten days. Such winter breeding may go on in many concealed places and twelve flies surviving a winter may produce 40,000 flies during the following warm season."

Dr. Beyer explains that flies have girded the globe because they breed in whatever substance may be available. "This wonderful adaptability to all and any kind of food material is the bottom of the wide geographical distribution of the creature."

Concerning the odd parts of the world, where house flies are swarming, Dr. Beyer says:

"During my long career in the naval service, visiting many countries and climates, I have not been in one where the common house fly did not exist to the extent of being a nuisance, and there is probably no one insect that is more widely distributed than the common house fly."

Albert R. Farlin.
Albert R. Farlin of West Somerville, Mass., a traveling salesman, who was born in Paris, 55 years ago, died Wednesday 9:30 a. m., at his home. He had been ill since last June, though he was confined to his bed but nine weeks.

Mr. Farlin had lived in West Somerville more than 20 years, always in the vicinity of Davis square. At one time he was a member of Wobesquaham tribe of Red Men, but retired some years ago, finding his chief enjoyment in his home. He leaves a widow, a sister, Mrs. A. O. Waite of Dixfield, and a brother, John C. Farlin, who is a teacher in the high school at Norridgewock.

Funeral services were held at his late home, Rev. Harry Adams having the Third Universalist church officiating. The remains were taken to Mt. Auburn for cremation, in accordance with a request made to his wife. The ashes will be interred at Wyoming cemetery, Melrose, in the family lot of Mrs. Farlin's parents.

To Make Cheese.
Get a bottle of rennet tablets for 25 cents and a dairy thermometer. Strain sweet milk into a vessel that will hold the desired quantity. One rennet tablet is enough for twelve gallons of milk. Put the milk on the stove and stir occasionally. When it tests eighty-five degrees, put in your rennet, previously soaked in a little cool water. Stir well and set the milk off the stove; let it stand thirty minutes, by that time it will be like clabbered milk. Take a long knife and cut the curd each way, turning it up from the bottom of the vessel.

Keep cutting it with each stroke. If you handle it roughly you will lose the butterfat. Dip off the whey at first. Put the curd into a colander to drain. After draining out in small pieces and salt. Put a clean cloth in your cheese-boat and put in your curd. Put about a ten-pound weight on it; at night take the cheese out and turn it straight on the cloth smooth and put the cheese back. Let stand twenty-four hours with twenty pounds weight on it. Then take the cheese out and cut a clean cloth to fit; paste the cloth down with salty butter and put in a cool dry place. Turn every day and rub on butter occasionally. Keep the flies away.

EDITOR ADVERTISER:—Having lately returned from a two weeks' vacation trip to Cleveland, Westland and Wapak, I will write you about some of the things I saw and some of the information that I obtained. This week was Cuyahoga County Centennial anniversary, and I obtained the county seat with a population of 500,000. The United States in population, did herself proud in celebrating the event.

Tuesday was Columbus day and was given over to the dark skinned sons of Spain, who by thousands marched through the streets with banners flying and with song and speech doing honor to the name and fame of their great countryman.

Wednesday was Automobile day, and 1,500 automobiles, beautifully decorated, traversed the line of march through many of the principal streets.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoon were devoted to the Aviation meet, in which the manbirds performed many of their most thrilling and daring flights.

The streets of the city were beautifully decorated; electric arches spanned all of the principal streets, and thousands of flags were floating from public and private buildings. To me, the public square of Cleveland was the most interesting feature. In one corner stands Cuyahoga county soldiers' monument, which cost nearly $800,000 and is one of the most tasteful and beautiful monuments that I have ever seen. The public square covers four city blocks and is the center of the street car railway system. Each street and interurban car as it arrives, passes around one of these squares to the waiting room, then starts on its return and a three-cent fare with one cent for transfer takes you anywhere within the city limits, but you must buy five tickets for fifteen cents or pay five cents for a single fare.

At Wayland I visited six days with friends with whom I became acquainted during the two summers that I spent there. I also visited an old deserted Camille church where Garfield used to preach. The building has been kept in good repair, and the ancient burial ground in the rear was well fenced and the grassed mowed. This section of Ohio is the homeland of the martyred president. He was born in Guyahoga county, and McKinley in Trumbull county. Strange that two such noted men, and both stricken by the assassin's bullet, should have been born so near together. At Wayland I have picked up a walking along the old tow path where it is said that Garfield worked when as a boy he started out to climb life's rugged ladder which led upward to fame and fortune, and ended all too soon in a martyr's grave.

This was my third visit to Newark in the last four years. With my friends I visited some of the interesting sights in about the city, but on account of its raining all one day I missed attending the Licking county fair, usually one of the best county fairs in the state. We attended the campfire and reunion of the 161 Ohio Vol. of the G. A. R. whose honor roll contains the names of 251 comrades shot to death on the battlefield.

We also visited the county jail and saw about a dozen of the prisoners awaiting trial for the lynching of Etherington, the dry detective. They were all a clean, respectable looking lot of young men, I should judge from 16 to 30 years of age, except between May and July. Like a lot of college students hazing one of their number, they had their fun on that eventful night, and now many of them will have to pay dearly for the mischief that they did.

Since the lynching Newark has been cleaning house and today is one of the best regulated and clean cities in the state, prospering as never before. Her railroad machine shops and all her vast manufacturing plants are running to the full capacity, and the laboring man, the business man and the capitalist working together for their own and the city's good, surely a bright future seems to be in store for the beautiful city of Newark.

Licking county has many prehistoric mounds and earthworks. We visited one of them about a mile outside the city limits. It is in the form of a breastwork about five feet high, twenty feet thick at the base and twelve at the top. There is no ditch on either side of the earthwork, and nothing to show from whose fort it was built. The ground was taken to build the breastwork. The first work is a perfect circle about one hundred rods in diameter, with but one outlet. A continuation of the breastworks down a narrow lane twelve or fifteen rods wide opening into an octagon field of four rods about the same diameter as the other, and enclosed by the same kind of a breastwork.

At the eight corners of the enclosure there is an entrance about two rods wide, and before each entrance and a rod or two back, a breastwork was built to defend the entrance. The ground, I understand, is owned by the state or national government and has been used for a long time as a training camp for the state militia and rifle range for gun practice. But now, owing to the long range of the modern army rifle, it is considered dangerous to use it for rifle practice and the new grounds have been located to the Newark Golf Club, who are spending some $10,000 in a new club house and other improvements. The ground is nicely seeded down, and is kept as nice and smooth as a city lawn.

A letter received from Mrs. Etta Haley Osgood, a native of Fryburg, under the date of July 18th, says that "in a little over a year, Uncle John, father, Uncle Amos and Henry Colby, have gone home." And now, with a mother's love and faith, she is laboring to nurse back to health the dear, dear, dear family circle, her youngest daughter, who has been critically ill for over three months.

Mrs. Osgood is vice president of the State Congregational Missionary Union of Pennsylvania.

Uncle John (Colby) referred to above was a native of Fryburg, and one of a multitude of young men, who, reared among New England Rocks and hills have by their thrift and energy helped to build up the great empire of the West. In my recent journeys East and West through Chicago whenever I have had a few hours to spare I have always walked up Wabash Avenue to the fine modern six story furniture store bearing the sign of John A. Colby & Sons.

One of the sons, an invalid, died years ago, but his name was never dropped from the firm's name. This fine building was filled from basement to attic with furniture and house furnishings of every grade, from articles of but a few dollars in value to single articles valued as high as $1,000.

About two years ago the stock of furniture was damaged by fire to the amount of $200,000, but it was fully insured and they had a damage sale, and instead of losing, they made money by the fire.

John Colby died not long ago at a good old age, honored and respected by all who knew him. But I was greatly shocked when I lately learned that Henry, a comparatively young man, strong and stalwart, had been stricken by malignant diptheria, died, and after an illness of only three days.

The weather here continues fine. We have had no frost yet. The ministers, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, are busy with their home, social and pastoral work. Little Margaret is at school and I am killing time in various ways, and expect to start for the "Sunshine State" of South Dakota soon after the pleasures of Thanksgiving day are over.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH ANDREWS.

You may run all the agricultural schools that can be made to pay for. You may run all the educational farming trains through the State that the people can be made to pay for. You may lecture and talk on agricultural subjects as long as the people can be made to pay for it.

All these things are good, but if you really want to improve the farmers' condition and at the same time improve your own by the production of more plentiful farm products and wood and timber, then you must devise some way that the farmers will not be obliged to be taxed at the rate of a "compound taxation," while the most of those who are not burdened with land or real estate pay a "partial tax," a "single tax" or "no tax."

GREENWOOD.

A Mishap.

Mrs. O. L. Peabody met with a mishap a short time ago that might, and probably would, in nine cases out of ten, have been a serious one. Happily, however, she escaped any injuries. While driving to Paris her horse stepped on a rolling stone while going down hill and turned a complete somersault, his head laying directly on the forward wheels of the wagon. He also was unhurt.

Peabody was thrown from the wagon and directly upon the horse. Undoubtedly this was fortunate as otherwise an escape from injury would have been little short of the miraculous.

J. W. Cummings has sold his horses to an out of town party.

Junie Swan went with her teacher, Eva Swift, for a visit in Wayne last Friday.

"Quite a little spell of weather," we have been having up in Greenwood the past week.

Apples all packed, sold and delivered. Generally speaking a light crop with prices around two-fifty per barrel.

Walter Rowe of Woodstock has bought the Jesse Daniel place and if he can make arrangements to do so will move on to the farm early in December.

With one or two exceptions schools in town closed Friday of last week. With the possible exception of the Patch Mountain school, the same teachers will return for the winter term. Miss Swift, teacher at that place, had not decided to return when she left for home.

At Cole's hall, Nov. 1st, the proceeds of which are to go toward the purchase of an organ for the schoolhouse in the Martin district. The event was a success in every way, about seven dollars and fifty cents being realized as net proceeds. Anna Deegan, the teacher in this district, is deserving of great credit for inaugurating a movement of this nature as there can be no question as to the desirability of an instrument of this kind in all schoolhouses.

NORTH FRYEBURG.

John Gray and wife were guests at A. E. Gray's, Sunday last.

The scholars of the Academy from this place are at home for a few days, the school being closed on account of diphtheria.

The corn chop craze is over for this year. The apple canning was finished last Tuesday, while labeling now is in great progress.

Ada Webb is under the care of a trained nurse at the Homeopathic hospital, Boston, after undergoing an operation for appendicitis, which was a very successful one. At the present writing she is in a very comfortable condition.

A hen thief also a thief robbing fox traps have been in this vicinity recently. They may get caught yet, if so, they may need a lawyer and doctor to attend them.

Wm. Gordon and daughter, his brother Samuel and his sister, Mrs. McKenney of Fryeburg, came in their brother's, Dr. Seth C. Gordon's, motor to stay in town ago to visit their cousins, W. H. and C. G. Gordon. W. H. and wife were away and C. G. Gordon entertained them, the best he could. After spending an hour or so talking together, C. G. was called upon to furnish some music. There was an organ and graphophone in the room but C. G. had to acknowledge that he could not play either of them but told them that he could play the "fiddle." That seemed to hit them exactly, so he soon had the fiddle in tune and went at it by rote as his eyes would not permit him to read notes, and the way C. G. tells it when he struck old Zip Coon if it had not been for the carpet and rugs on the floor he would have had them all on the floor dancing a "poked reel."

INTERESTING STORY OF A GERM

How it Destroys the Health by Corroding the Tissues of the Head, Ears, Lungs or Stomach, and How it May be Avoided.

A germ has been found to be the cause of Catarrh. An insect—so small that a microscope is required to see it, is responsible for the misery and death of a great many people. Moreover this germ may be CONVEYED FROM A DISEASED PERSON TO A HEALTHY ONE.

This accounts for the prevalence of this disease. Whole families sometimes have it. Some may escape for a long time, or are not susceptible to the poison.

The nose and throat are the first locations of the malady. Everyone is familiar with the disagreeable nature of it. After a time it extends to the ears, blocking them up, causing "snapping" sounds, deafness, noises or discharge. Or it may attack the lungs, where it will give rise to all

Helping the Amateur Farmer.

All over the country, men and women, most of them in middle age, are investing their little savings in land and are coming from towns and cities, where they were born, brought up and have lived always, to the country to try their fortunes.

Usually about fifteen hundred dollars is the amount of their capital, and on that they expect to make a comfortable living and provide for old age, though they have absolutely no knowledge of farming, except what they have read in books and magazines. It certainly is a pathetic sight, and there are many, many failures, and the neighbors are kindly and sympathetic and helpful to the newcomers.

These city farmers furnish much amusement to their neighbors by their laughable mistakes and ideas, but it is a matter of deadly earnest to the amateur farmers. Many country people hesitate to help such beginners for fear that they will become nuisances in the way of running to them constantly for advice and help, and sometimes this does happen; but if the farmer will just exchange places with his bewildered neighbor in fancy, he will have renewed patience with him and give him a lift in many ways.

It is hard to believe that the most common things are entirely foreign to the minds of city people, so that it is "line upon line and precept upon precept" when it comes to telling them how to manage. They are so eager to learn, and so afraid of losing their little all, that the hearts of all prosperous farmers should be touched.

And where the neighbors have helped the amateurs, they have pulled through and have developed into good neighbors and kind friends. In one instance the neighbors combined to give odd chores and easy work to a man, who was pinched the first winter he was on his little farm, and thus kept him in good heart till spring.

His wife was supplied with sewing and other work, while the man toiled early and late at the unfamiliar tasks, and they both were kept from despair by the work and the money. If the neighbors had dropped them they would have sacrificed the little place and gone back to town disappointed and penniless, but having a little assistance helped them through the trying time and put their feet on the solid foundation of thrift and knowledge.

Very often the amateur farmers are forced to the country by ill-health, and then the new life is much harder. Nobody wants to bother with a feeble man doing chores in a bungling way, yet light work might so keep him in the open air as to cure him; so some kind-hearted farmer is sure to invent work for the invalid can do. A delicate, discouraged man moved to a little farm with his family and took up the work of raising chickens to make a living, even though he knew nothing about the chicken business.

His wife was cheery and energetic, willing to learn, and the neighbors delighted to help them get a start. Nothing in the way of money ever was given to young people, but they were free to ask for aid on all occasions, and they soon became self-supporting in more ways than one. They studied the agricultural papers given them by their new friends, followed the advice freely bestowed, and worked with might and main to succeed, and they did succeed. The farmer's health improved, and now he is strong and hearty. They frankly say they owe their success to their neighbors, and they pass it along to others.

Farmers whenever they have the chance, on almost every farm fruit, vegetables and other things go to waste annually, and these may be given to the amateur farmers. Seeds for the following year, light firewood going to waste in the woods, and potatoes the farmer does not bother to dig—in short, any one of the dozen things wasted on a large farm would mean much to the discouraged beginner. If in addition to these things the neighbors club together and haul in the small crops or get together a supply of firewood or do some other kind act, especially with cold weather coming on, no one can tell how the hearts of the city people are encouraged.

Perhaps they do appear shiftless in their ignorance of the new life and habits they do seem to waste many opportunities, but it is well to remember that their muscles are not trained to farm work nor their minds to grasp the multitude of new ideas trooping in upon them.

Only by degrees, and then by a painful process, will they master the details of the new business, and they need help and encouragement. It isn't fair to say that the sooner they get back to the city where they belong the better the country will be, for the country will not be better off without them.

They help make country people more appreciative of their many blessings, and they really make good citizens if given a chance. It is desirable not to make objects of charity of them, but simply to treat them as you would like to be treated under similar circumstances.

When they do succeed, they will be grateful forever to those who gave them a helping hand and a hearty word of cheer, and will be able to help and encourage other city people who want to move to the country.

Life and death seem to be matters of heart rather than of brain. The returns show that of every thousand deaths in this country one hundred and nineteen are from some form of heart disease, while fatalities from any species of brain disorder are very rare.

Curing Catarrh.

Accept Our Advice and Try this Remedy at Our Risk.

Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membrane. The mucous membrane is, one may say, the interior lining of the body. Catarrh therefore may exist in any part of the system.

When the catarrhal poison attacks the mucous membrane, inflammation and congestion are produced and nature fails to throw off the accumulated poisons. The organ which has been affected ceases to perform its proper function as nature intended it should. The result is, complication upon complication, and a large circle of friends, even more serious afflictions may be the result.

We honestly believe Resall Mucos-Tone will do wonders toward overcoming catarrh. It is made from the prescription of an eminent physician who made a long study of catarrh, and his great success with this remedy was an enviable one.

We want you if you are a sufferer from catarrh in any form, to give Resall Mucos-Tone a thorough trial. Use it with regularity and persistence for a reasonable time, then if you are not satisfied, come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every cent you paid us. This is certainly the fairest offer that any one could make and should be accepted with the sincerest of purposes. It costs in two dollars, price 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain it only at The Rexall Store, F. P. Stone, Main street, Norway.

The Golden Pumpkin.

Mrs. Rorer's Pumpkin Pie: Make pie crust, roll thin and line deep pie dish. Take one pint stewed pumpkin, add a tablespoon melted butter, stir in two well-beaten eggs, one-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoon ground ginger and one-half pint milk. Pour into crust and bake.

Mrs. Farmer of Boston cooking school makes pie in this way: One and one-half cups creamed and strained pumpkin, two-thirds cup brown sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs, one and one-half cups milk, and one-half cup cream. Mix ingredients in order named and bake in one crust. Add beaten yolks of four eggs and one cup white sugar to two cups steamed and strained pumpkin. With this mix one quart milk, one teaspoon cinnamon, mace and nutmeg mixed, and the beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in steady oven.

Mrs. Linda Hull Larned Recipe: simple but delicious. Take one and one-half cups stewed pumpkin (very dry), two cups milk, one beaten egg, large half-cup brown sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon salt and ginger. Line pie tin with pastry, fill with mixture and bake in slow oven until brown on top.

Promoters Arrested.

Timothy Boudreau and J. Delisle of Houghton, were arrested in Manchester, N. H., by federal officials, on the charge of using the mails to defraud in the selling of stock of the Oxford Gold Mining Co., of Byron.

Several years ago, Mr. Boudreau, a mining engineer, acquired a tract of land in Byron which he thought was rich in gold. The Oxford Gold Mining Co., was formed and considerable money was subscribed by French citizens of Lewiston, Waterville and Biddeford, where Mr. Boudreau was acquainted. With this money, mining machinery was installed and a crew put to work.

While plenty of gold quartz was found it was a question as to whether the extraction of the gold particles would ever pay for the labor involved. But the sale of stock still continued.

Boudreau and Delisle each furnished bail in the sum of $1500 for their appearance at the next term of Supreme Court in Manchester.

Badly Mangled.

Wedged between the wheel of his wagon and the shaft the body of Hiram Richards, a well known lumber and ice dealer was found early today in the woods near his home in Mexico, by men returning from their work at the nearby paper mills.

The man's body was badly mangled and was held so firmly that the wheel had to be removed before the victim could be extricated.

The cause of the accident is not known. Richards drove to Roxbury yesterday to see about a lumber contract and failed to return that evening. He was 50 years old and leaves a widow.

It is given out at Washington that before President Taft leaves the White House he will recommend a one-cent rate for letters given that letter postage at this rate will yield the government a profit. As to magazines, Mr. Taft will recommend that they be required to pay the present rate of one cent a pound on all mailing matter and a much higher rate, to be determined later, on the advertising pages. Newspapers will not be affected. The average haul of the newspapers is only 800 miles, that of the magazines 1100 miles. The adoption of a new rate for the magazines, Mr. Hitchcock says, will entirely wipe out the deficit and put the postal establishment on a self-sustaining basis.

The old stand-by, The Maine Farmers' Almanac, is out for 1911. New Year's Day falls on a Sunday, Decoration Day and Fourth of July on Tuesdays, and Christmas on Monday. Easter Sunday will be April 16th.

President Taft has issued the annual Thanksgiving proclamation and fixes the day as Thursday, Nov. 24.

BUSTLE! and fortune awaits you. Shirk! and defeat is yours. For there's no chance of deliverance. For the chap who can't endure.

My Doghood.

The six o'clock whistle! I began to stretch and to yawn, the prelude to getting wide awake.

I put my right fist up to rub the sleep out of my eyes, and behold, there was a misfit! The knuckles didn't chuck it usual into the eye-corners, and there was a sensation of claws feeling around. It was strange! My eyes flew wide open to understand the thing. It was a dog's paw that had got fixed on the end of my arm!

I sprang to a sitting posture in bed and gazed at the paw; in a second my eyes traced to the wrist, and then to the elbow, and in a flash I discovered that I was dog all over! I wager no mortal ever had queerer sensations. I recalled that I had gone to bed with a clean, white nightgown on, but I awoke up conscious that I was the same fellow only clothed in the hairy skin of a black dog.

I jumped out of bed but didn't light on the floor with my usual sensations, and I couldn't stand erect. "Well, this is queer!" was the way I felt.

I looked for my shoes, but couldn't pick them up. I shoved them over to the stool, and then tried to sit down on the stool to put them on. That would not work. You may guess I was getting nervous. I thought to myself, "I'll bathe my hands and face." I couldn't pour out the water! There was no doubt in my mind; it was no longer the cobwebs of a dream in which I was entangled, I had somehow exchanged bodies with a dog!

I was desperate at the thought. What was I to do? I tried to scream out; but it was an agonizing yelp. I had somehow, sense enough to have myself, in a measure, under self control. I was afraid they would shoot me for a mad dog, if I abandoned myself to the full expression of my feelings.

I was turned out of the house. In my dire distress I took a turn around the yard and crept under the woodshed. The breakfast bell rang, but I knew no dog was expected at the table. I lay there some time, thinking on my condition. If it were only possible to run away from myself.

I decided to go down town. As I got out of the front gate, there was a little boy on his way to school; he picked up a rock and shied it at me. I dodged it with a howl, instead of a curse for the scamp.

I couldn't tell you how many dogs met me on my way, all sorts and sizes, and of all degrees of respectability. Some would heeter it over me, and others would be friendly. I couldn't understand their language, so I must have seemed very unresponsive to their advances.

I walked into a drug store, where I used to buy candy, but they put their old customer out with a scold. Every nook and corner was familiar to me, but I was a stray dog to my old haunts and friends.

I was leaving town in a state of disgust, intending to make my way to the country, when I saw, coming towards me, the girl of my heart in company with a friend. The very sight of her made me forget my plight for the moment. I was doing my best to give her a sweet smile in anticipation of a hearty greeting. When I was near enough to offer my hand, I reared up, and extended my paw. What did that fellow do, but whack me over the head with his cane. Oh, it was pitiful!

In that extremity I awoke sure enough for that bad brood of mine rushed into the room and gave me a rousing slap, and yelled "Breakfast ready!"

A dream it was! I resolved then and there never to kick anther dog, be he as mean as sin; that was what I had done, ruthlessly, the day before to my faithful Tige. —[Dumb Animals.

DOCTORS FAILED. RESTORED BY PERUNA.

Catarrh of the Lungs Threatened Her Life.

Miss Ninette Porter, Braintree, Vermont, writes: "I have been cured by Peruna."

"I had several hemorrhages of the lungs. The doctors did not help me much and would never have cured me. I saw a testimonial in a Peruna almanac of a case similar to mine, and I commenced using it."

"I was not able to wait on myself when I began using it. I gained very slowly at first, but I could see that it was helping me."

"After I had taken it a while I commenced to raise up a stringy, sticky substance from my lungs. This grew less and less in quantity as I continued the treatment."

"I grew more fleshy than I had been for a long time, and now I call myself well."

Shows Amount Due Each Depositor.

The Bethel Savings Bank is the first bank in this vicinity to comply with the Bank Commissioners request to verify its accounts with the depositors.

They used the publication scheme, that is, published the number of the account and the amount due as shown by the books of the banks. This was printed in the Bethel News and a copy was sent to each of their 1738 depositors.

The depositor knowing the number of his or her book can look on the sheet opposite that number and see how the account stands on the big ledger kept by the bank. It is not expected that the amount on every deposit book will agree with the amount on the printed sheet.

If there is a difference the amount on the printed sheet should be the largest. A dividend has been added to it which has not been put on your bank book. If the amount opposite the number of your book on the printed sheet is smaller than the total amount of deposit on your bank book an error is shown and the bank should be notified.

This is the verifying process used by the Bethel Savings Bank, and by several other savings banks in the State. Its a good one and commends itself to any thinking person.

The Bethel Savings Bank is a strong institution showing a reserve and profit in excess of $54,000.00 with deposits of $416,000.00.

Ventilating Your Room.

Nothing is more common than fresh air. Nature has provided it in abundance for all who will take it. There is no one thing so potent to prevent disease, so effective in maintaining a healthy action of the whole body. Bad air spreads disease. Consumption, pneumonia, bronchitis and catarrh are bad air diseases. Bad air, too, is a cause of colds.

Sewage flowing into pure water pollutes it. So the air we breathe from our lungs pollutes the air in the room. The impure air from the lungs of any number of people in a room mixes with the pure air and makes it dangerous and unfit for breathing. There must be a supply of fresh air constantly coming in to take the place of the foul air, which in all cases should be permitted to escape near the top of the room.

It is law of nature that air is always in motion, and because this is true we have only to lower our windows a little from the top and raise them a little from the bottom and the processes of ventilation will go on without our thought or care.

It is impossible to estimate the amount of misery and suffering caused by impure air. If you would, escape to it that you get at all times a plentiful supply of fresh air.

The inventors of new styles of wearing apparel are a class of people who fatten their pockets by preying on a weakness of human nature. Of course a Prohibition law against those people would be objectionable as summary legislation, but a good High License law, so high, as to put most of them out of business, might give us a chance to wear our own clothes and bonnets instead of their going out of style.

Peggywisdom.

Peggy in the Boston Journal says:—Are all married women under the delusion that a lot of other women are just as fond of their husbands as they are—or willing to be? A woman lawyer of experience states it as her belief that they are. I have only seen evidences of this state of affairs in very young wives very much in love and in an occasional older woman who has retained her illusions and not grappled with present-day woman problems. Women everywhere are growing to feel their own importance and are subordinating man's somewhat, and therefore this peculiarity that was woman's is to be observed less and less.

It is rather agreeable than otherwise to me to meet a woman who believes that in her husband lies the sun and substance of perfection or something approaching thereto. He may appear to others a common, under-sized man, ugly of feature and ungainly of form, utterly lacking in mental powers, wholly inconsequential.

But when a wife endows him with ability and charm by the grace of her love and confidence, then I too, respect him a little and maybe commence to notice that he has his good points. Even if he fails of agate estimation it is better to think on the fortunate side of his being mated with a woman who thinks him a paragon or on the philosophy I one that the good Lord knew what he was about when he made us see people and things differently.

A little more of the sublime confidence such wifehood is capable of is needed to make men; men approaching the ideals that women have held of them. A belief in the good of any one, always sustained, often makes good come to pass. A good wife is the inspiration of a good man. Therefore let us have less complaint among wives and more of the feeling that one's husband is the best husband in the world, tempered with the knowledge that for other women are other men as fine and noble and that one's husband is not the prey of every woman he meets because he himself is above intrigue and because most women are.

WATERFORD.

$1,000,000 Dollars.

Maria Stanley, a student at Bridgton Academy and the daughter of Freeman Stanley of Waterford, has just been treated to a very pleasant surprise party by the announcement that she is the chief beneficiary in a legacy amounting to upwards of a million dollars.

It is understood that for some time past Miss Stanley has been receiving checks of a generous amount but it is not until very recently that her good fortune has been made known. It seems that when a young child in Waterford she became very popular with one of the old gentleman boarders. She of course realized the fact that she stood high in his favor, but she never suspected that anything of this sort would happen.

Miss Stanley will leave shortly for Cincinnati, accompanied by Mrs. Knight of North Bridgton. The full particulars of the affair are not generally known but enough of the details have leaked out so that the same has caused considerable of a stir in Waterford and North Bridgton.

Waldo Seavey had a severe attack of bilious colic recently.

Bona McAllister has been sick with neuralgia in her face.

Mrs. Joseph Kimball is confined to the house by a rheumatic trouble with her knee.

Q. W. Stevens has had his telephone removed. He does not say he misses it, but his wife does.

We learn that Mrs. Charles Day has had her leg amputated from the effects of the injury to her knee she received about a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lunt of Harbor are stopping at Waldo Seavey's. Mrs. Lunt is having a serious time with her foot which she burned at the Harbor corn shop this fall.

Roland Charles of North Fryeburg found his nice Jersey heifer shot when he went to take his stock from the pasture near Solomon Johnson's. "Thought it was a deer."

Hotel on Mt. Washington.

Pres. Mellon has decided to build a big hotel on Mt. Washington. The building will be of brick, and will have accommodations for 100 guests.

The work will begin early next season. The railroad to the summit is controlled by the Boston & Maine and it will be put into a condition that the heavy materials to be used in the construction of the hotel may be accomplished without difficulty.

With the completion of the hotel, the train service to the top of the mountain will be so arranged that many more passengers will have an opportunity to take in the pleasures of this famous place.
